1968

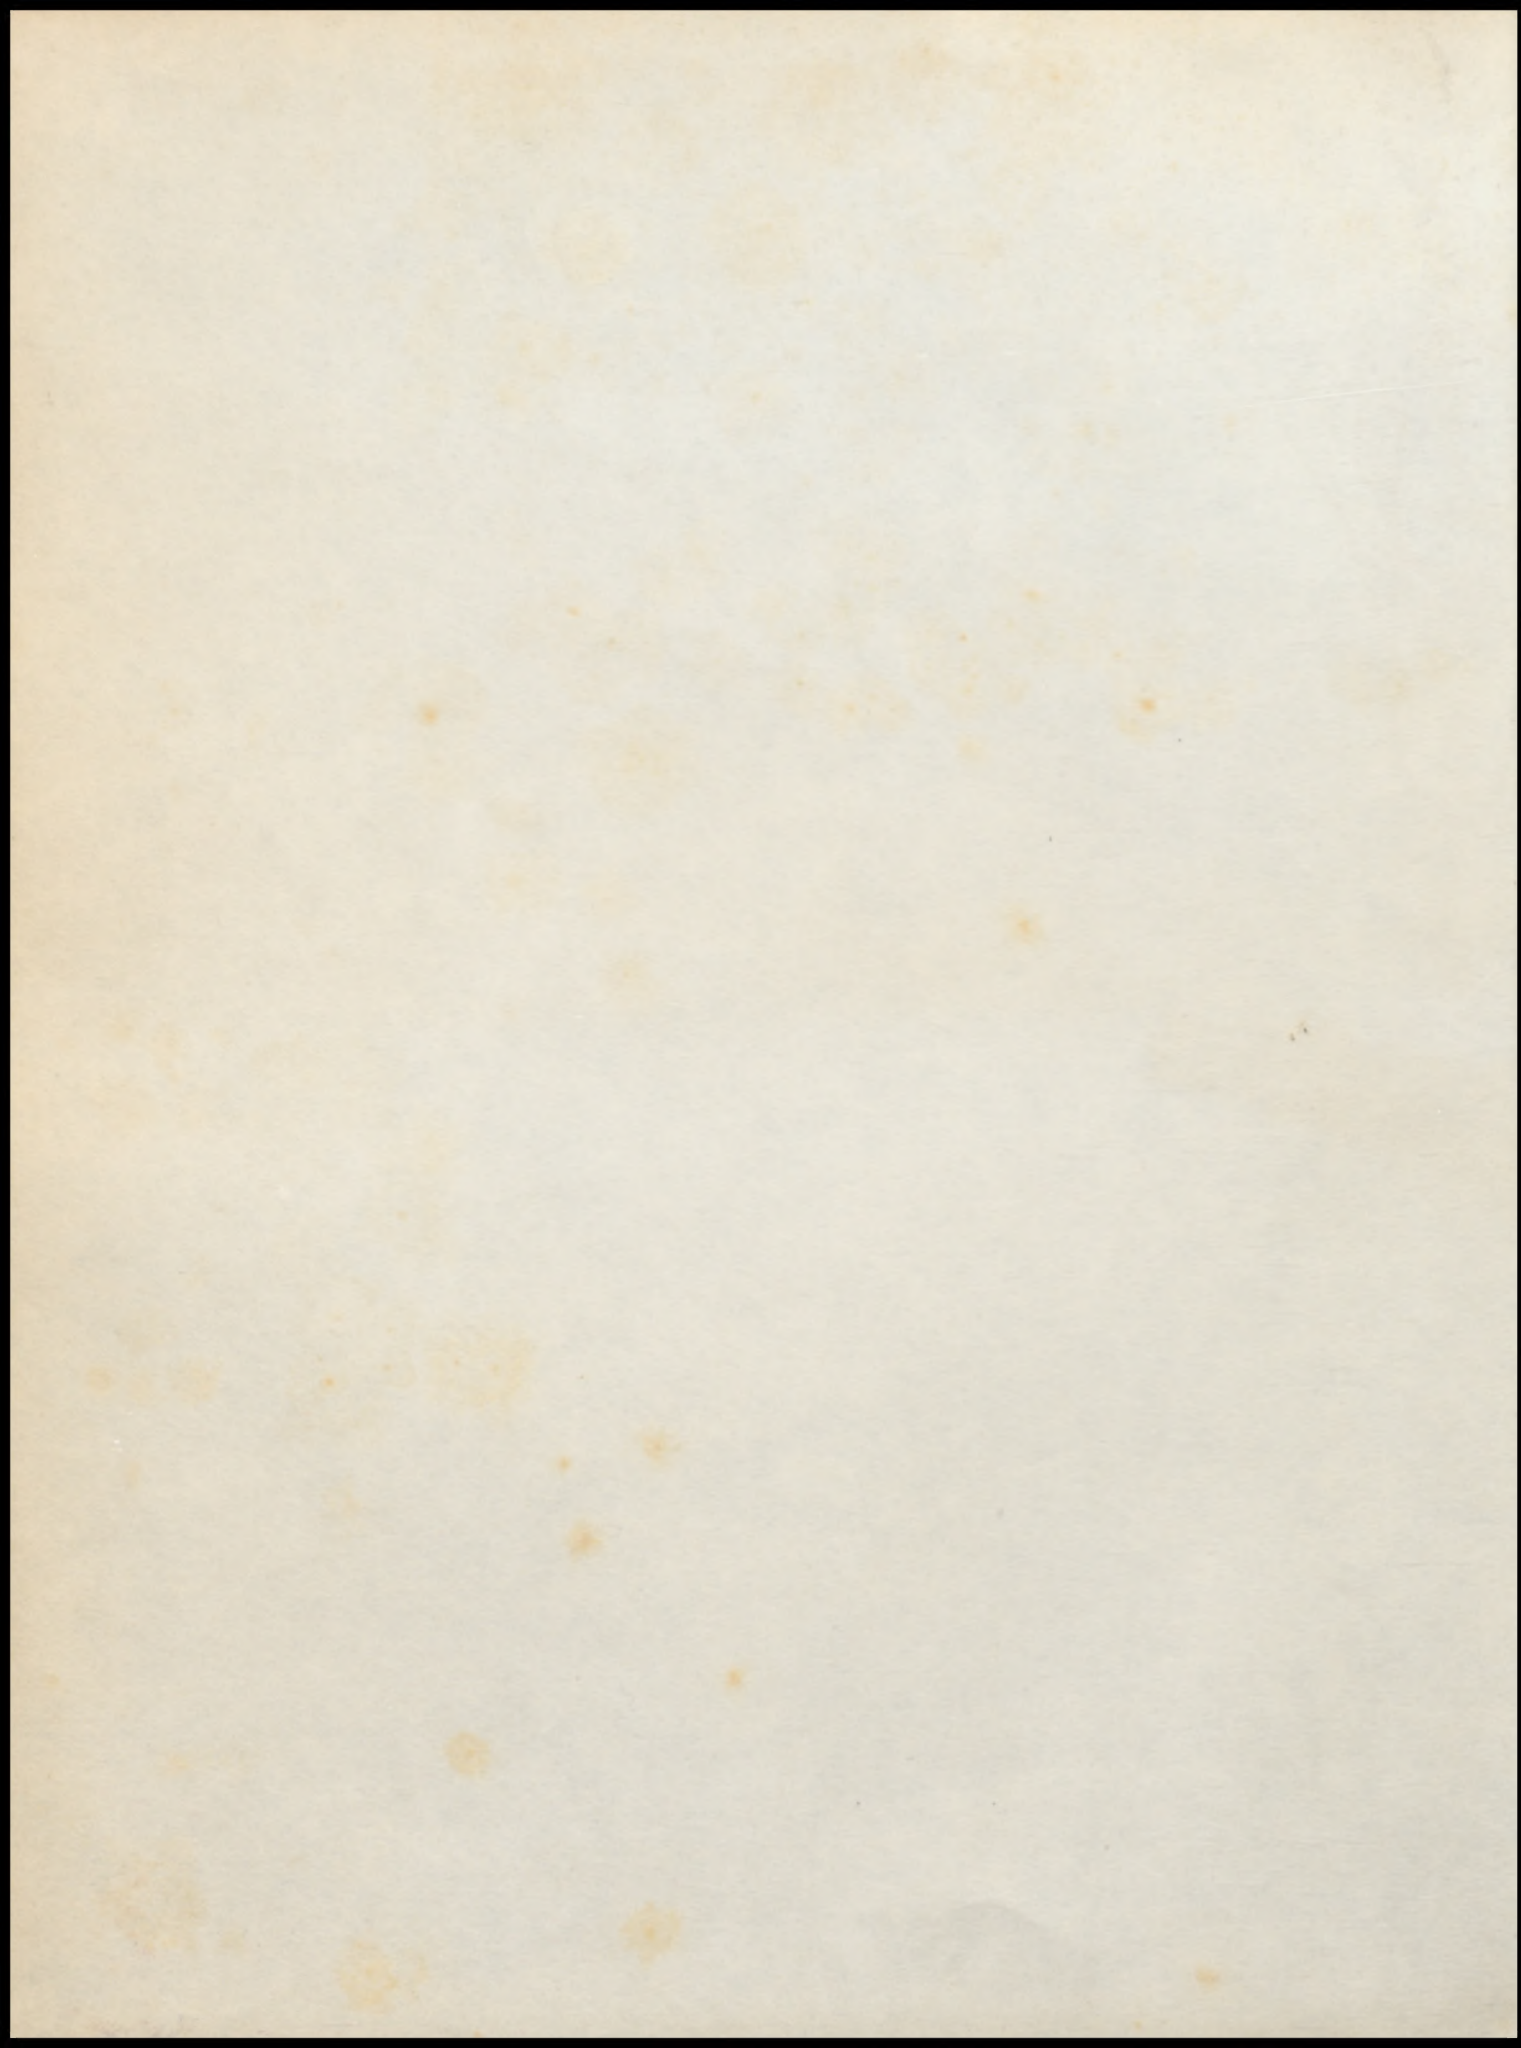

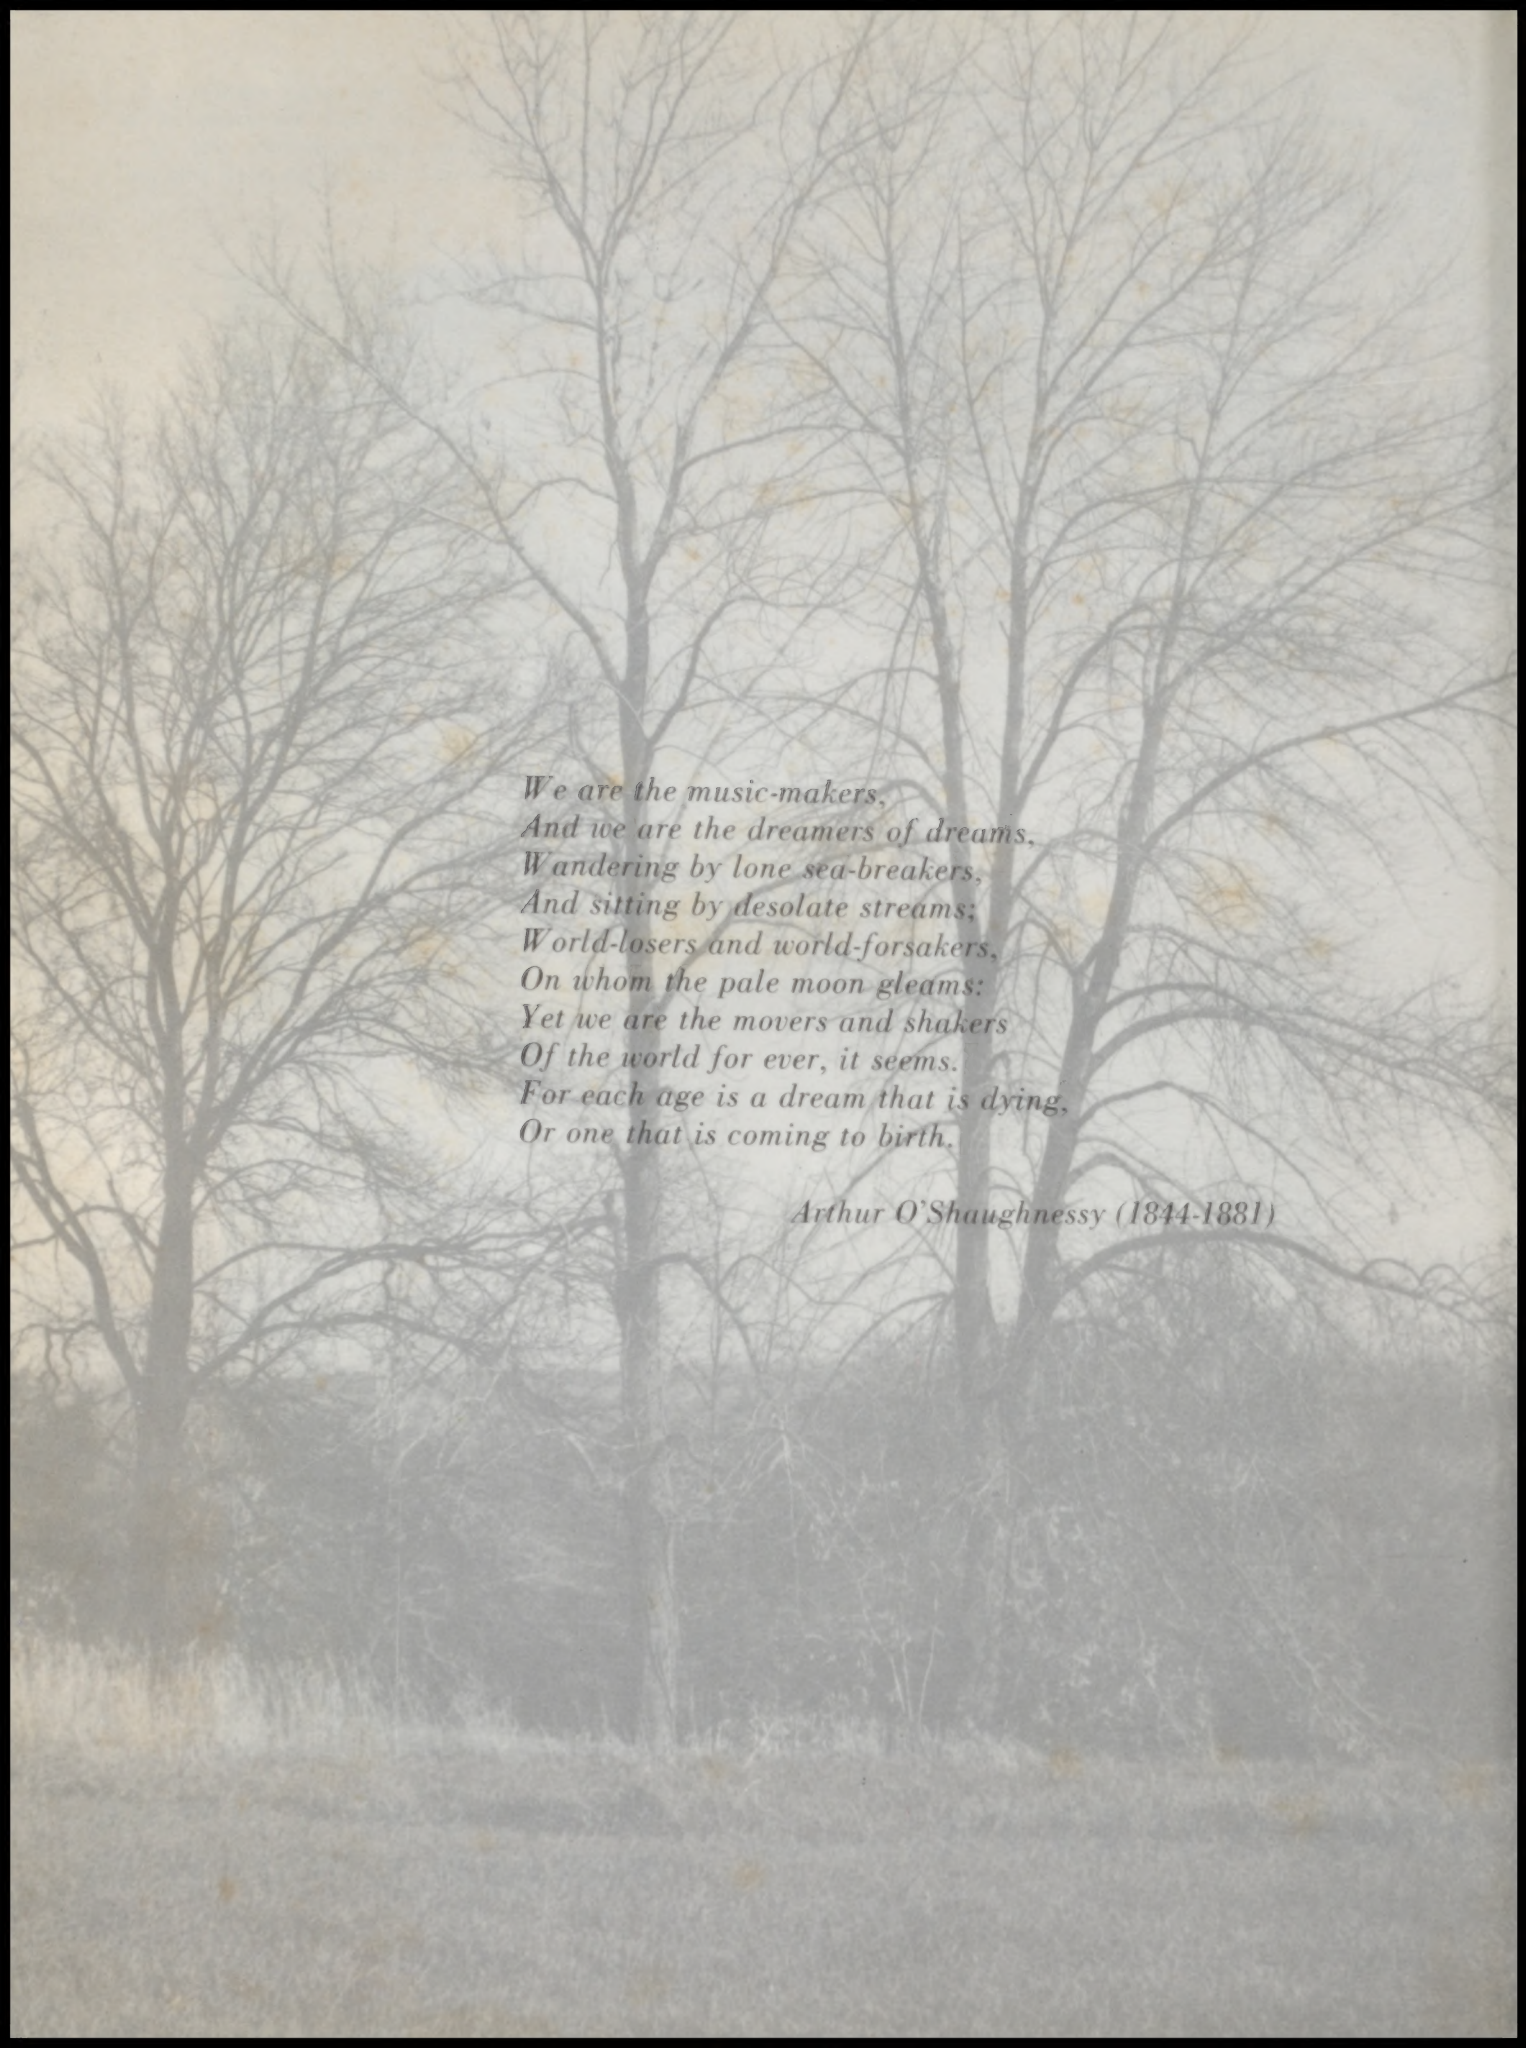

The arrow, though straight itself, often makes a crooked path. As well as the support of the sturdy wooden bow, it needs a steady hand, a dedicated eye. Be careful not to hunt in No Hunting zones. Point the arrow in the right direction. Release it with as much effort as you need. And pray that no obstacles appear. Before you know it, the arrow will strike something. Bull's eye! The arrow will remain embedded in the target until you pull it out. If it is destroyed, you can always make a new one.

*We are the music-makers,
And we are the dreamers of dreams,
Wandering by lone sea-breakers,
And sitting by desolate streams;
World-losers and world-forsakers,
On whom the pale moon gleams:
Yet we are the movers and shakers
Of the world for ever, it seems.
For each age is a dream that is dying,
Or one that is coming to birth.*

IN APPRECIATION

It is exciting when adults in their busy world take time to advise young people and give them the benefits of their knowledge and age. Such fine individuals are the senior class advisors Miss Libby, Mr. Bryant, Mrs. Fay, and Mr. Howard, who in their unceasing devotion and aid have made our four years of high school a memorable and personal experience.

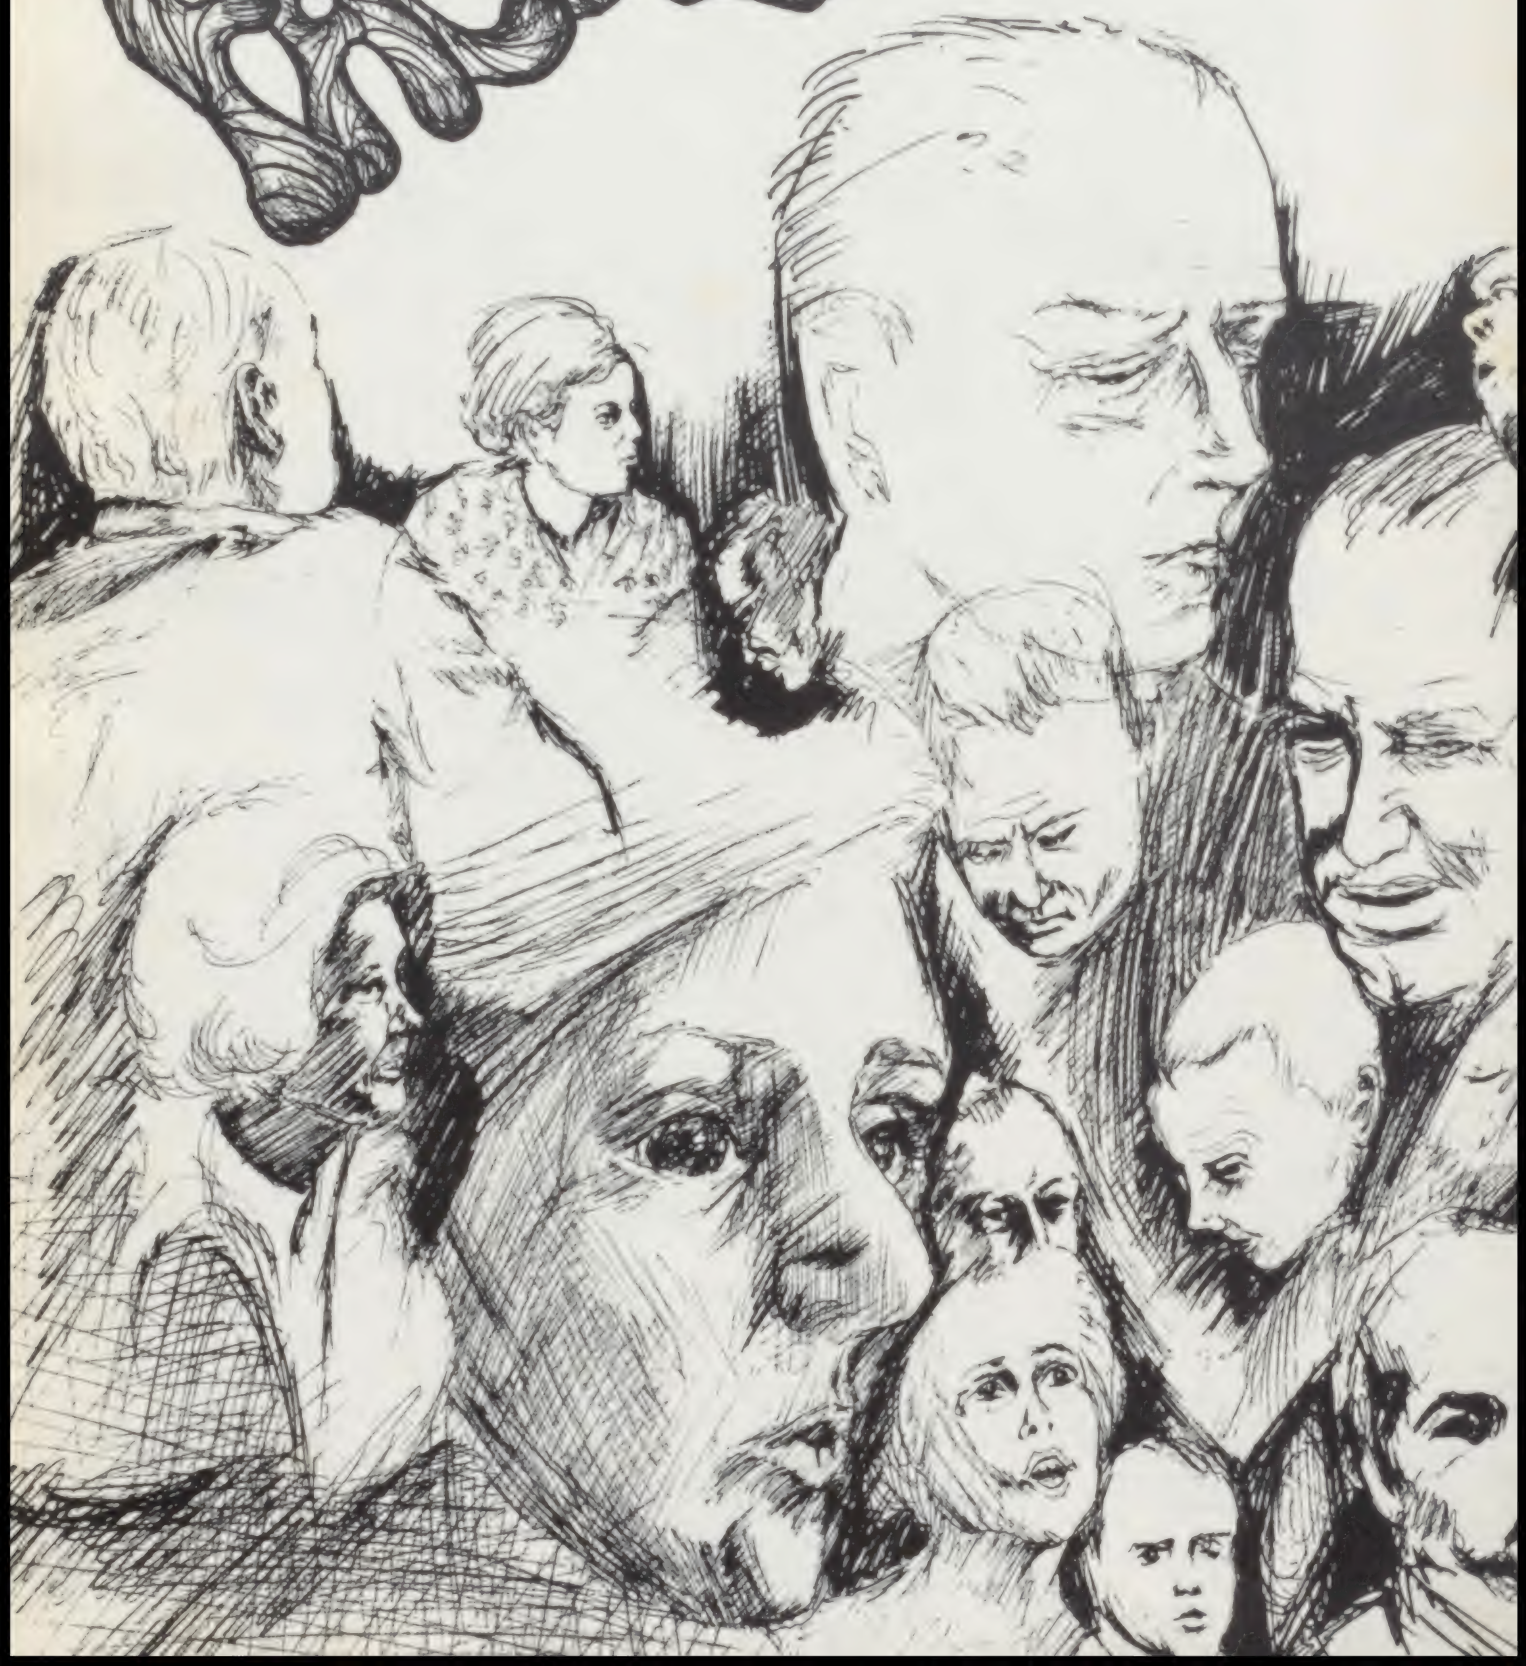

Also vitally important to the senior class has been the energetic yearbook advisor Miss Thibeault, without whom this publication could not have existed.

The senior class wishes to thank these unselfish friends for the many instances of kindness they have shown us.

COOKS JANITORS NURSES

The hard-working staff at Suffield High has made the school clean, healthy, organized. We've got the most efficient school east of the Equator. Pans, mops, files, bandages are the tools they fix up the school with. At any one particular moment in a day of many hectic moments you might find them cooking hamburgers and tossing salad, repairing a loose doorknob in E-8, typing out some papers for Mr. Ouillette, giving the students eye exams. It takes a lot of wear and tear on their part. And everybody appreciates it, rewarding their smiles with their smiles. Lots of backbone—elbow grease. A clean up job to beat all clean up jobs.

running, i came from all directions with anxieties and expectations of the place, its people and the years ahead, as i drove my '64 auto cautiously into the fog of an education, my high-set goals seemed not so lofty because i had more confidence in the road i took and the car than in my driving.

fall disappears under winter snow and with it takes reluctant shuffles to first period classes, mornings are no longer mornings but rise clear into defiant loneliness.

a whisper in the trees of new love, picking four leaf clovers and watching time (through thick glass) grandfather clock its way but not being sure whether it ought to be over or not ♪.

.. and as you drive out the gate, don't look back because you might crack up, but in my mind i've looked back a thousand times though i said i never would.

life is faces i've seen before, browsing through second-hand people on the avenue of the americas, a familiar paper mache face headed in a canvas direction. a particular way of smoking a ten-cent cigar i know i've seen before, a pair of blank eyes on track 3 waiting for the 7:54. there are faces and faces but these i shall never forget though the place where i knew them is an empty refrigerator to play in in my mind. life too is places; different and yet alike. covered with ivy so thick that the walls could walk away without being missed. dirt caked floors after a 7 hour day from 8 to 3. city playgrounds are jungle-gymmed and ring around-the-rosy just the way it was before i was "educated". but when i am very alone and driving in my brand new mind i like to go back to a favorite hotel in the suburbs where i signed the register and became a guest until never. most of all life is memories stuck bubble gum like to the bedpost of my mind. things which i can't forget like those horrible movies postmarked on my mind and vomiting after smoking seven cigarettes during intermission.

memories are a clear blue sun on the soccer field and the heavy vague mist on an eight o'clock class day. but i hardly know two of them in history class order. sometimes when i pull up to the hotel in my shiny new mind my well-worn friends come out to say a madras welcome. we pull out the old trunk of four year memories to take us back to when we were being fitted for our new cars. a freshman year falls out as we open the rusty box. inside is a pile of 47 minute classes. mr. a and a lost conference. underneath is a layer of sophomore sophistication, negoism and another lost conference. Shangri-La. and the conference cup. senior magazine drive, the ball and graduation. and when it is time for me to close my trunk and drive back to the life again i cannot help but think how empty and how very full my four year trunk is.

JUNIORS We're the Juniors. We marched into this school with our best foot forward. And we had our minds made up that we'd work until we could feel proud of everything we did. Our efforts have been rewarded in knowing that we are well prepared to become the school leaders next year. This is the result of our desire for achievement and respect. We're more than glad to support any cause and accept any challenge that will bring honor to SHS.

SOPHOMORES We're the Sophomores. All aspects of high school are interesting to us because of our interest in them. The combination of our imagination, vitality, and desire keep us working our hardest and best. We like most of the experiences we've had because we learned a lot from them. Now that we understand things a little better we want and need more privileges and responsibilities. And we'll work to get them.

ROSA AND ELLEN

Ellen Kent was chosen to live in South America for ten weeks during the summer preceding her senior year. She was Suffield's first Latin American Open Door exchange student. In Orsorno, Chile, she enjoyed the company of Beatrice Mohr and her dairy farming family. Ellen participated in activities typical of South America, particularly at a private day school for children of German descent, while showing her charm and good will. She returned enriched with the knowledge of many foreign customs and with the memories of many good times.

For ten weeks beginning with October 28, 1967, Ellen was hostess to Rosa Maria Peralta from Guatemala. Rosa enjoyed visits to Mount Snow, Mystic, Sturbridge Village, New York, and Washington D.C. "Chochy" appreciated her opportunity of learning at Suffield High School. Her sincerity and friendliness won her many friends in America. Suffield's pride in Ellen and Rosa is limitless.

MATH CLUB

If you take the cube root of the hypotenuse AB, divide by the quantity  $4\pi$ , and add a little Descartes, the result is bound to be the Math Club. Computers and slide rulers and compasses. Every other Tuesday, H period they go off on tangents to find cosines. Protractors and equations and programmed learning.

CHESS CLUB

All the king's horses and all the king's men. Moving the king's rook 3 to the king's bishop 4 —checkmate! Long minutes of thought on Thursdays end the day with a cry of victory from Chess Club members. Mindreaders. A rolling carpet of black and white, black and white ...

STUDENT COUNCIL

Responsible for the hobos at the school on Hobo Day. These hobos contribute money for SHS's new foster child, Franklin Quintero. The money they spend on tickets for Hobo Day helps pay for the Foreign Exchange Student's ticket to South America. At the tea in the library Rosa Peraulta had cider for the first time. Nobody caught the Wildcat Fever at the Pep Rally sponsored by the Student Council, because everybody already had it. Learning parliamentary procedures so they can serve as capable precedents of how the students should act. Selling book covers so everyone can have their books covered for a couple of months. The link between the student body and the administration; the administration and the student body.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

Service, scholarship, character, leadership. Mr. Ouilette shook each shaking hand. A parade. They put down their pens for one day and received their pins. A star-lit candle. Appraising applause. Exit stage right. Snitching chrysanthemums. A luncheon at lunch time with the parents. A full day.

FUTURE NURSES CLUB

First comes first aid. Bandages, thermometers, Bactine. A bunch of girls get together to watch films, listen to speakers, have discussions, do research work. You don't have to needle them if you want to get some advice about nursing. Learning how to help mankind. The beginnings of endless dedication.

FRENCH CLUB

La vie est excitant and so is Le Cercle Francais, the French Club. Pere Noel and Bingo and washing sidewalks with toothbrushes at initiation. Que veut dire que veut dire? Madame Watt gave an exciting speech, Mr. Connelly showed exciting slides, and the club put on an exciting banquet. Did you know that the Eiffel Tower is 11.808 inches high? C'est la vie.

LATIN CLUB

Modern members of the classical age. Initially, they have an initiation. They start off the year on the right foot—wearing two different shoes, carrying books in pillowcases, rolling eggs with their noses. Project Roman banquet. They rebuild the Roman Empire at workshops. Rehearsals. And then the real thing. Masquerade party. Quadeamus igitur. A procession. A session of skits. Finally, they have a feast. Attended by slaves, the masters eat on the floor. Classical members of the modern age.

RED CROSS

Springfield Hospital patients received stockings stocked with fruit, candy, candles to sweeten and brighten their Christmas. Seminars at Hartford and discussions. Service on Society.

SAGITTA

And so it began. We few with little and much in common began—an adventure. On treks through mountains of pictures and books and diagrams we discovered picas and cropping, uppers and lowers, dummies and ladders, and found ourselves not wise, yet wiser. We followed a new sun on the horizon called a light table; knew the dark shadows that chased us through Teem bottles and empty M&M bags and called them deadlines. Every 5 weeks we brownpapered the shadows and sent them to Kansas; darkened the sun every night at 5 and waited until the next day...

I was searching but I didn't know what for. Alone I found nothing. Together we were inventors, artists, revolutionaries; lost in a little world that encompassed the whole of thought and ideas. We hammered at Royals, sold ads, wrote copy, sketched dividers, designed layouts, created a cover, planned and replanned. We joked, worried, laughed, cried, slept, discussed, ate, and when it was all over sighed very comfortably. We were so many things in the beginning and were so many more in the end. No longer few but one, not only wiser, but wise. We were a year and a school. We were the Sagitta.

Thanks for being you.

Kathy

FFA

Green thumbs. And maybe some black-and-blue thumbs. On many days they have sport's nights and parliamentary procedure contests with other towns. A $150 prize in a landscaping contest—they make their living from the land. There's been talk about the public speaking contest. For sale: Christmas wreaths, poinsettias, Easter lilies, lettuce and tomatoes. On Fall field day they identify bushes, trees, flowers. On Springfield day they judge meat, poultry. And they try to shift their way into first for the tractor driving contests. Brains and brawn.

LEADERS CLUB

Athletically minded, they mind athletics. Their goals: keep scores straight, straighten out such difficulties as when to have foul shots, ties; tie themselves together in co-ordination to show how to play sports, use equipment; equip girls with confidence to improve ability. And they have to have their eye on the ball.

LIBRARY

Books and books and more books. Assistant librarians. Taking attendance, checking books out, sorting and cataloguing, and even pasting folders in the backs of books. For this they give up their study halls. All of those bookworms at SHS keep them busy. In charge of what the students read. Collecting fines, checking books in.

MONITORS

Busy. For example, an initiation, waitresses at the Pops Concert, a cookie sale. Juniors and Seniors did practice teaching for experience (and adventure!)—it paid to babysit before, didn't it? Many members tutored fifth graders. Helping others to help themselves. Speeches by Mrs. Riley and Ellen Kent and Mr. Greenleaf. Readin' and writin' and 'rithmetic. In the FTA they're training today for teaching tomorrow. Preparing themselves. Satisfaction is guaranteed.

FTA

THE CONDUCTOR

From their musical chairs, they play notes that run throughout the auditorium. Number after number after number. A combination of noteworthy selections. And they've never blown a song. Melodies multiply every time they perform. Divided into sections, they played in such affairs as "South Pacific" and the Pops Concert. They added rhythms and tunes to many lives at the Christmas and Spring concerts. The subtraction of any member would be of negative value to the band. So they had to raise money to buy band uniforms for the new members. Sitting down on the job on stage. They keep so much time for practicing that they have to be good. It can easily be noted that they are unbeatable. They play to beat the band.

A BAND OF BAND MEMBERS

CAMERATA CHOIR

ALL STATE CHORUS

ALL STATE BAND

DIVISIONAL BAND

It has been heard that these singers and instrumentalists are the cream of the crop. Raised on platforms on stage. Picked from the top of the barrel. The best of the bunch. They reach a point high on a scale of ability. The choirs sing up a storm of applause. Maintaining harmony at concerts. And when the bands are tuned up the audience is sure to tune in. It sounds like Suffield High has many well-voiced and dextrous students.

THE DIRECTOR CHORUS & ROBED CHOIR

A Christmas carol sing out on the town green—these singers were built up to perfection with many rehearsals. And then their voices melted in the air. Snowmen. Christmas and Spring concerts. Practice made perfect. Do's, re's, and mi's became doremi's. The evening ends on a happy note. The finale of the year came with "South Pacific." A love story plotted on an island. The two groups did a professional job—paid with applause. Show men.

Shangra-La

One night came after many nights of furious work and planning: a festive, glorious, blurry night of colors and people and happiness—the night of our junior prom.

Our queen, Sue Shay.

The patterned schedule of school work is broken up by activities in the background. Enthusiasm is kindled in September. It serves as the fuel for accomplishment. Spreads to everyone. This activity enlightens the students. The energy they possess is given off. Warming the whole school. So each person glows with his own achievements. Hot on the trail to success. Leaving imprints in June.

It has been said that the mark of a true champion is the ability to come from behind to win. The NCCC champions seemingly patterned their whole season around this statement. Off to one of the slowest starts in recent history, the Suffield soccer squad suddenly jelled at the midway point of the season unleashing a highpowered offense and an invigorated and stubborn defense on its hapless conference foes. With seventeen goals in five games the Wildecats clinched the NCCC crown with a 5-2 victory over Ellington, the only team in the conference to beat Suffield in two years. The desire and determination that Coach Galitsis inspires in all of his players is bound to make Suffield the power in the NCCC for years to come.

SHS HARRIERS

Track, called the individualist's sport, was designated a team effort by the members of the 1967 championship team. With remarkable depth in every event the Wildcats proved to be overpowering, going undefeated in all conference meets. Unlike most sports, a championship in track is not based on the total seasonal record, but on a conference meet at which every team has a chance to capture the N.C.C.C. crown. In the spring of 1967 the Suffield track and field team asserted its superiority over its conference foes in the conference meet with a tremendous and stunning victory. With a great many of these talented champions returning, Suffield should again be the team to beat in 1968.

Suffield's star performers arranged to be spectators at such events as the Fabulous Magicians' game. Three cheers.
